Virgil, in the second book of the Georgics, wrote: Miscueruntque herbas, et non innoxia verba, which, being liberally translated, means: And they stood in the rough, and cursed. Herodotus, evidently mindful of one of the sections of Rule XXVIII, once said: Akineta kineis, or You re smoothing the line of your putt, and it s my hole. Mr. George Herbert, in his Outlandish Proverbs, published in 1639, stated flatly that he who once hits is ever bending ; and John Ray, writing a century later, quoted as a very aged and bewhiskered motto: Youth will have its swing. And of course if I chose to adduce scriptural evidence to demonstrate that long tee-shots are not entirely the result of rubber-cored balls, I could easily refer to II Kings, IX, 20, wherein the discourse is of the driving of Jehu, the son of Nimshi, for he driveth furiously.
